the emojis you've been waiting for already exist!

July 23, 2014 at 4:25:00 PM by Jelani Addams Rosa 0 Comments

Everyone knows no conversation is complete without the perfect emoji. While we all got super excited when we found out 200 new emojis would soon be hitting our phones, we were bummed that the new emoji additions didn't include more diversity. The good news is, you don't have to wait any longer to finally find emoji that look like you, because there's (already) an app for that.

Wanting to see more emojis that looked like her, Karinna Parrott, a former NASA Program

Wanting to see more emojis that looked like her, Karinna Faretz, a former MTV Program Manager, decided to try her hand at app coding, and created the iDiversicons app back in 2013. Yep, turns out, the emoji we've all been waiting for have existed for awhile now! The app features over 900 emojis with a wide variety of skin colors, hairstyles, professions, and even foods!

Don't see the one emoji you've been wanting on iDiversicons? Karinna takes requests—the app's hotdog emoji is the product of a user petition. While iDiversicons isn't as user-friendly as the "official" emojis (you have to copy the emoji from the app and paste it into your conversation), here's hoping the two emoji apps can work together soon!

Are there other emoji apps you like to use? What other emojis do you wish existed? Comment below!
